

WYLIN D. WILSON

AUTHOR • PROFESSOR

“Wylin D. Wilson has gifted us with an insightful analysis that elaborates on the problem of the healthcare system, much like other societal structures, being marred by systemic racism and sexism.” — Dána-Ain Davis, author of “Reproductive Injustice: Racism, Pregnancy, and Premature Birth”

““The theory of womanist bioethics meticulously weaves Black women’s experiences throughout the book as it critiques mainstream bioethics and advances feminist bioethics.” — Evelyn L. Parker, Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University

“In this rich constellation of Womanism, Black Church prophetic witness tradition, and Black health activism, Wylin D. Wilson lays fertile ground for the flourishing of womanist bioethics and anti-oppression bioethics at large.” — Charlene Galarneau, author of “Communities of Health Care Justice”

“I have been waiting for this book for 15 years...A MUST-READ!” — M. Therese Lysaught, Loyola University Chicago

Dr. Wylin D. Wilson is Assistant Professor of Theological Ethics at Duke Divinity School, where she teaches within the Theology, Medicine and Culture Initiative. Her teaching and research are at the intersection of Bioethics, Gender, and Theology. She is former Teaching Faculty at Harvard Medical School Center for Bioethics, she served as a Senior Fellow at the Harvard Divinity School Center for the Study of World Religions, and Visiting Lecturer in Harvard Divinity School Women’s Studies in Religion Program. She is also former Associate Director of Education for the Tuskegee University National Center for Bioethics in Research and Health Care and former faculty member of the Tuskegee University College of Agriculture, Environment and Nutrition Sciences. She is currently Principle Investigator for the Bioethics and Black Church: Addressing Racial Inequalities and Black Women’s Health in North Carolina research project which examines the potential of the Black Church as a resource in addressing the Black maternal health crisis in the U.S.

Dr. Wilson earned her Ph.D. in Religion, Ethics and Society from Emory University; her M.S. in Agricultural, Resource, and Managerial Economics from Cornell University; and her M.Div. from the Interdenominational Theological Center. She is a member of the Society for the Study of Black Religion, the American Society for Bioethics and Humanities, the American Academy of Religion, and the Center for Reconciliation Advisory Board at Duke Divinity School. Dr. Wilson’s publications include: “‘This is My Body’: Faith Communities as Sites of Transfiguring Vulnerability” in Bioenhancement and the Vulnerable Body: A Theological Engagement (Baylor University Press, 2023); her first book, Economic Ethics and the Black Church (Palgrave Macmillan, 2017) and her second book, Womanist Bioethics: Social Justice, Spirituality and Black Women’s Health (New York University Press) is forthcoming.

NYU PRESS

SPEAKING SUBJECTS:

- Womanism, Faith, and the Ethics of Black Women’s Health
- Race, Religion, and Health Disparities: A Bioethical Perspective
- The Black Church and Health Justice: Care, Wellness, and Equity
- Grief, Death, and Flourishing: Reimagining Ethical Care at Life’s End
- Vulnerable Bodies and the Impact of Science, Technology, and Religion
- Christian Ethics in Action: Addressing Health, Wellness, and Justice

CONTACT:

Nanda Dyssou, Publicist

nanda@corioliscompany.com | (424)-226-6148

@WylinDWilson

wylinwilson.com